Share a picture book!

November is International Picture Book Month! It's a time to celebrate those special books with wonderful stories and beautiful pictures that we all love so much. Picture books are meant to be read aloud, so this makes them the perfect reading resource for sharing stories with children. Here are some of our tips to help you do this.

SHARE THE STORY

1. Start by spending some time looking at and talking about the book's front cover. Don't forget to read the story's title and the names of the author and illustrator.
2. Make sure that the children can see the pictures as you read. Sit close together if you are reading to one or two children. With more children, have them sit in front of you and hold up the book to show them the pictures as you read the story.
3. Involve your children! Younger children often enjoy turning the pages. Invite older readers to read the words of one of the characters, or a paragraph or two of the story.
4. Try different things to make stories come alive. Use different voices for different characters. Read softly in quiet, gentle parts of a story. Read quickly if a character is in a hurry or is being chased. Read in a big, booming voice for loud noises in the story.
5. Allow time for your children to look at the pictures and spend time looking closely at the pictures together. Comment on things you are curious about or that you notice and like. Encourage your children to do the same.
6. Encourage your children to ask questions. Answer them if you can, or look for the answers together by re-reading and discussing parts of the story, and looking at some of the pictures again.

AFTER READING

1. Talk about the story together. Encourage your children to share their opinions of the ways in which the characters in the story behaved and the choices they made.
2. Find ways for children to explore the story you have read to them. For example, they could retell and act out parts of the story, or they could draw a picture of something the story makes them feel or think of, or they could write a letter to one of the story characters.

Which stories?

- ★ Choose picture books that you enjoy, but also ones that match your children's changing interests.
- ★ Repeat stories. Children often like to hear their favourite stories again and again. They discover new things about the story each time you read it.

Mainane afe?

- ★ Tlhopho dibuka tsa ditshwantsho tse di go itumedisang, le dingwe tse di tsamaisanang le dikgatlhego tse di fetogang tsa bana ba gago.

Here are some ideas to help you and the children in your life celebrate International Picture Book Month.

- Choose your favourite. Make a list of all the picture books you and your children read together during November. Then at the end of the month, vote for your favourite book. The picture book that gets the most votes is the winner!
- Tell the story. Choose a picture book that none of you has read before. Read the title together. Next, page through the book, and while looking at the pictures, tell your own story to go with them. Afterwards, read the story that the author wrote. How was the story you told, similar and/or different to the one that the author wrote?
- Try something new. During November try reading picture books by authors you haven't tried before. Also, choose picture books with different styles of illustration. You may find a new favourite picture book!
- Make your own picture book. Make up a story with your children and then write it down on sheets of paper. Get everyone involved in drawing the pictures. Use staples or string to bind the book together. Don't forget to give your books a cover! (Tip: You can find instructions on how to bind a book and make a book cover that lasts in Edition 161.)
- Be a picture book ambassador. If you have a Facebook page, challenge your friends to celebrate International Picture Book Month by reading a picture book to a child every day during November. Share some of the ideas on this page with them too. If you're on Twitter or Instagram, use the hashtag #internationalpicturebookmonth. Tweet or post about the importance of picture books and let your followers know what they can do to help grow a love of reading in children.

Hair magic

By Mbali Kgame ■ Illustrations by Magriet Brink and Leo Daly

Zinhle loved skipping in the playground with her friends Sindi and Zongi. Just one thing worried her. When her friends skipped, their hair flew up and down, and flicked from side to side. Zinhle had a thick mop of soft hair that formed a big round shape, and it never moved in the same way as theirs did.

One Saturday morning Zinhle asked her mother, "Mama, why doesn't my hair grow down like my friends' hair? Their hair flies about when they skip. It looks so pretty! It makes me sad that my hair doesn't move like that. It just stays still!"

"Your hair may be different from your friends' hair, but it's just as beautiful as theirs!" said Mama. Zinhle made a sad face, but her mama just smiled at her. "Look around you, Zinhle," she said. "Your hair grows from the roots up, like the trees and plants. It's also round and big, just like the earth we live on. You can play around with it too and make beautiful patterns and shapes in it. Your hair is magical – and that is special!"

These words made Zinhle happy. She ran outside to tell her friends about her magical hair. But when she told Zongi and Sindi what Mama had said, they just looked at each other, and burst out laughing.

"How can hair be magic?" asked Zongi.

"Ha-ha-ha!" laughed Sindi. "Don't joke like that, Zinhle! Magic? Never!"

Zinhle's eyes filled with tears, but she didn't cry. She didn't want Zongi and Sindi to laugh at her again.

Just then, the girls saw Gogo waving to them. She was standing in her doorway nearby.

"Look, Gogo's calling us," said Zinhle.

The three children loved helping Gogo. She told them lots of stories and gave them dried fruit every time they visited her. So Zinhle, Zongi and Sindi hurried to find out why Gogo was calling them.

"I'm not well today," said Gogo. "I want to send you to kwaNtuli to get some medicine."

The children were sad to hear that Gogo wasn't well and agreed to go and get her some medicine.

"I'll draw you a map so you won't get lost," said Gogo. "The map will lead you to Baba Ntuli's place, and he'll give you some herbs." Then Gogo went inside to find paper and a pencil to draw the map. She looked in her drawer, but she couldn't find any paper. "I'll have to make another plan," she said.

She looked carefully at each of the girls. Then she said, "Zinhle, you have very beautiful hair. It looks strong. I will braid cornrows to make a map in your hair. The map will help you get to kwaNtuli."

Gogo sat on her favourite red chair, and Zinhle sat on the mat in front of her. Gogo braided Zinhle's hair. The other girls watched eagerly. As Gogo combed and braided different patterns, Zongi and Sindi were amazed by the length of Zinhle's hair.

"Wow! Your mama is right," said Sindi. "Your hair really IS magical! It looks so short, but it's longer than you think!"

"It's true," said Zongi. "It's a big surprise!"

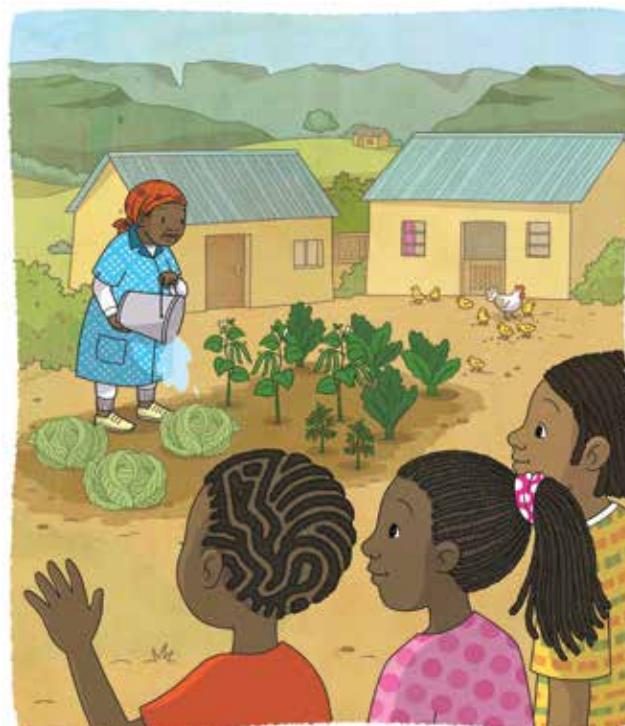

Zinhle smiled at them happily.

When Gogo had finished braiding Zinhle's hair, the cornrows looked just like a map to guide the children to kwaNtuli! As they walked along the narrow paths through the veld, Zongi and Sindi often stopped and studied Zinhle's hair to make sure that they were still going in the right direction. While they walked, they sang a song they had made up:

*"Gogo's not well,
Gogo's not well.
We're going to kwaNtuli,
we're going to fetch herbs –
herbs to make Gogo well!"*

The children finally arrived at kwaNtuli. There Baba Ntuli gave them two packets of herbs for Gogo. On their way home the girls again used Zinhle's cornrow map to guide them. When they arrived safely at Gogo's house, they gave her the medicine.

The next morning, Zinhle, Zongi and Sindi went to Gogo's house to see if she was better. When they arrived, they found her watering her garden.

"Good morning, my children," said Gogo with a big smile. "I'm feeling much stronger today, all thanks to you!"

The girls were happy to hear that they had helped Gogo, but they were thinking about something else too.

"Gogo, would you please braid my hair the same way you did Zinhle's hair?" asked Sindi.

"Mine too, please!" said Zongi.

"Of course," said Gogo. "Come inside."

During news time at school the next morning, the three friends told their class all about their magic hairstyles. At break, they had just started skipping when some children asked to see their cornrows that made a map to kwaNtuli. "It really is magic," said someone, and everyone else agreed.
